Whether the ranch system of cattle raising in this country is to become a permanent institution or not is a question of some interest. That it will dourish for a long time yet, at least, and certainly until the lands occupied are needed for settlement, we regard as one of the positive indications of the times. In a letter to the London Live Stock Journal, however, Judge and as the authorites could not derstand the girl, who is unable to the hospital treatment at Ironton was not extlement with will it will to with a deep that it will that was claimed the tion of the execution of tract giving all that was claimed the fo It treatment at Ironton was not exproprietors have realized large profits from it, has so little to recommend it that cattle breeders can hardly anticipate that it will become a permanent industry, so as to justify prudent men in breeding with reference to supplynourishment, wrapped up rags too scant to conceal ir nakedness, their garments were ipped off and put to the flery furnal like Meschach, Shadrack and ednego of old. BLEW OUT THE LIGHT.

The Narrow Escape of a Young Man Who Didn't Know a Gas Jet Was Londed.

This description is in every way applicable to the weed I have here.

In the same article it was further said, "When sheep find this weed they rarely leave it until some of them dietithey become dim of vision, crazy, stupid, lose all power and die."

I have not found that sheep are remarkably fond of the weed. I drove one of my flocks directly over a spot where there were ten or more large bunches of it, and noticed that not a sprig of it was touched by a sheep.

I happened at another flock later, and having examined the range behind them, I found where one bunch out of about a dozen had just been eaten by the sheep.

I suppose no one sheep ate enough to seriously hurt it. At any rate the herder in charge of the flock was instructed to notice particularly for any bad results from the eating of the weed, and he has made no such report of such results.

At another time I noticed where a bunch of the weed had been eaten, and larer, in the flock that had just grazed over the ground, several sheep were affected strangely.

They became dim of vision, crazy, stupid, lots all power, but did not die.

One of them, (a young ewe) is still very siek and under treatment by me, and I think will die. She is apparently totally blind, when lifted to her ing or banging would awaken him.

In the Wool Grower it was also said: "To ascertain without doubt if the suspected plant is the real Loco it is only necessary to chew a few of the leaves, and if it burns or irritates the roof of the mouth, then the shepherd will know that it is death to the sheep, although the test will not kill him."

In reciting his adventure to a Globe-Democrat reporter Trayla said: "Democrat reporter Trayla said: "To ascertain without doubt if the suspected plant is the real Loco it is only necessary to chew a few of the leaves, and if it burns or irritates the roof of the mouth, then the shepherd will know that it is death to the sheep, although the test will not kill him."

Democrat reporter Trayla said: "When I was goin' to sleep I thought to myself there was a kind of a sort of a bad smeil in that house, but I had been drinkin' a good deal and was purty sleepy, and I don't remember any more until I saw a lot of fellows throwin' water on me. When I come to I was dreamin' that the house was locking badie. leakin' badly."
